AND GOD SAYS...

For the LORD your God will bless you as he has promised, and you will lend to many nations but will borrow from none. You will rule over many nations but none will rule over you. (Deuteronomy 15:4-7).

Moses spoke these words to Israel as a promise from God for their future if they would just honor him by obeying him. But Moses prefaced these words with the individual outcome that will result from doing things God's way. He said, "There need be no poor people among you, for in the land the LORD your God is giving you to possess as your inheritance, he will richly bless you." (Deut. 15:4). However, this blessing was conditional for he went on to say, "if only you fully obey the LORD your God and are careful to follow all these commands I am giving you today" (vs. 5).

But since we don't live in a perfect society he also added these words, "There will always be poor people in the land. Therefore I command you to be openhanded toward your fellow Israelites who are poor and needy in your land" (vs. 11).

Now it is important to note that these words were given specifically to Israel. Yet it is important for us to discern the unchanging heart of God to bless those who believe and obey him, even in practical financial matters.

So how has this worked for America? Early as a nation we called ourselves a "Christian nation." Our founders diligently studied the bible to base our Constitution and laws on Christian principles. It seemed God blessed us as we tried to do things his way. But as it always seems to be the case, when we are successful we become proud and claim for ourselves the credit for our successes. We began to trust in ourselves and forget about our need of God. President Obama admitted this on June 28, 2006, when he declared that "we are no longer a Christian nation."

As a result of doing things our way instead of God's, our national debt is now almost $40 trillion. That's almost $120,000 for every single person in America. And it is climbing rapidly. Its estimated that the total national debt has grown by nearly $70,000 per second for the past year."

So, what's the answer, more reliance on government or more reliance on God?

BARN OWL

HEAD START

The first Head Start kids are just now hitting retirement age. Head Start began in 1965 to help low-income children get ready for school. It provides preschool education, health and nutrition support, and help for families. About 670,000 children use Head Start across the U.S. About 12,000 children in Wisconsin are enrolled. It has become one of the nation's most successful investments in early childhood education.

Head Start is another target of the far right. President Trump's policy guide, known as PROJECT 2025, on page 482, calls for elimination of Head Start.

According to Erik Gunn of the Wisconsin Examiner, proposed new government rules would reduce services Head Start provides. Changes would end supports for children who speak languages other than English and children with disabilities. They would end requirements for programs to work closely with families.

New rules would lower teacher qualifications. They would reduce federal standards for teaching math and reading. They would reduce requirements for home visits and even for helping children brush their teeth. It would be harder to provide health screening for children and make plans for those with developmental disabilities, hearing or vision problems and autism.

Head Start now has strict rules on the number of children per teacher. The administration wants Head Start to follow the rules of each state instead of consistent guidelines. For example, Head Start limits class size for 3- and 4-year-olds to 15 children for 2 teachers. Wisconsin rules allow 2 teachers to run a class of 20 3-year-olds or 26 4-year-olds.

The government goal would be to increase the number of children served in a center using fewer and less qualified staff. This would be done with no increase in funding.

The writers of Project 2025 say Head Start does not protect children well enough and has no long-term value for students. But a 2022 Brookings Institute study found that children in Head Start have better language, reading, social and emotional skills. They are more likely to go to college and hold professional jobs later in life. Many other studies support these results. For many parents and children, Head Start is also an important connection to healthcare workers, nutrition specialists, teachers, and social services.

The administration's new rules don't improve Head Start but weaken it. The government tried to delay funding and even tried to eliminate all Head Start funding. But they were stopped. The administration still wants to slowly weaken Head Start to a point where it will fail on its own.
